

Who we are

The International Islamic Liquidity Management Corporation (IILM) is an international organisation established by nine central banks, and one multilateral institution to create and issue Shari'ah-compliant financial instruments in order to facilitate effective cross-border Islamic liquidity management.

Our shareholders comprise of nine Central Banks and one multi-lateral institution:

What we do

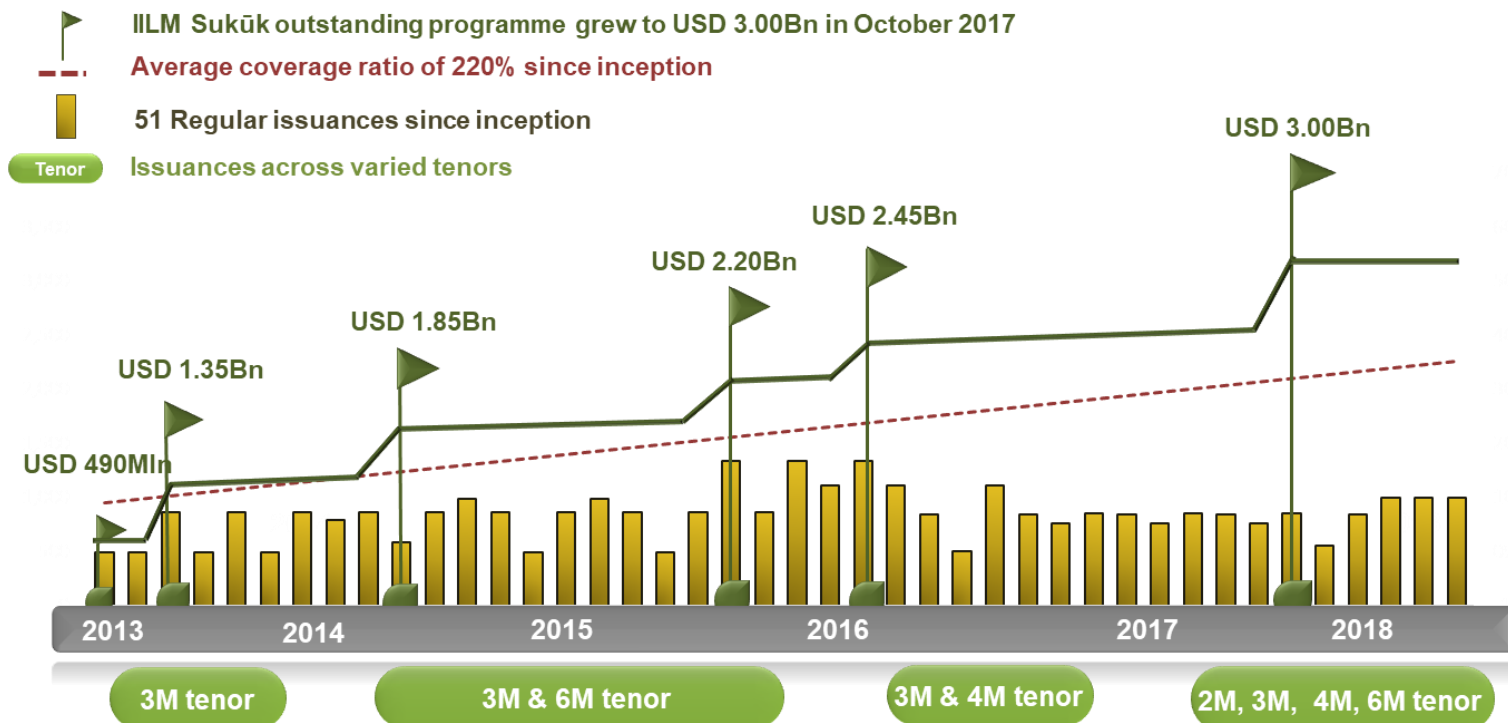

To facilitate the policy mandate of the IILM, a Shari'ah-compliant short-term certificate programme was established in 2013 to issue tradable, Shari'ah-compliant instruments to support the varying liquidity needs of institutions offering Islamic financial services (IIFS).

Since the inaugural issuance of USD 490million 3-month Sukūk in August 2013, the IILM has grown to the current USD 3.0billion outstanding issuance size and has issued across different tenors to provide IIFS with different options to better manage their liquidity management requirements.
